"Project on Rule of Law in the Middle East and Islamic World"

Obtained a grant of $18,035 in spring 2004 from the Institutional Reform and Informal Sector (IRIS) at University of Maryland.

The project, implemented by Washington College of Law, looked at certain areas where "restraints on state" was deemed to be important in terms of governance criteria developed by European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD). The countries studied were Algeria, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco and Tunisia. The first part of the research examined 7 areas identified by IRIS: 1. Publication of Laws (frequency, transparency, availability, etc.), 2. Public Input into Policy (official and non-official mechanisms for public input, comment, standards), 3. Retroactivity of laws (extent, policy, etc.). 4. Expropriation of Property (permissible, compensation, criteria, resources, etc.), 5. Individual Rights to Protect Commercial Rights, 6. Administrative Interpretation, and 7. Judicial Independence. The second part looked at the law of the six countries in the following areas: 1. Insolvency Law, 2. Company or Corporations Law, 3. Secured Lending, and 4. Enforcement of Commercial Agreements.
